

How to use the Food Access Locations Map

www.onondaga.gov/aging/food-resources

Step 1

When viewing our website on your smartphone, clicking on “View larger map” will open the map in the Google Maps app.

Step 2

Google maps will show the map in full screen on your smartphone. If you get the message “Couldn’t open map”, click on “Try again” to reload the map.

Clicking on “Food map legend” at the bottom of the screen will bring up the full list of food locations by type.

Step 3

On the menu, you can filter food access locations by type, by clicking on the checkbox to mark or unmark the checkbox.

In the same menu, you can share the list to someone by phone number, text/messenger, or email.

When done using the menu, be sure to click on the back arrow:

DO NOT click on “close” as it will close out of the map entirely and you will need to start over.

Step 4

Once you are back on the map, click on the “Search here” to add your address or zip code and hit enter.

The area within the zip code will be highlighted in a faint red outline on the map.

Step 4

Click on the “” symbol to select which location you want more information on.

The name and distance of the location will come up at the bottom.

For more information about a location, click on “More info” at the bottom of the screen.

Step 5

Contact information will come up, along with days and hours of operation.

If this is a location you want directions to, click on “Directions” at the bottom of the screen.

To go back to the map to look at other locations, click the back arrow in the top left corner.

Step 6

Google Maps will automatically generate directions based on your current location as seen here.

You can edit your location by clicking on “Your location” and typing in the starting address.

You can also click on one of the symbols by the type of transportation you will be travelling by (i.e., by car, by bus, walking, etc.).

You can click on “Start” when you’re ready to go to that location. Reminder that it is best to call the location before going as many locations require reservations/registration.

If you would like to share a location with someone, click on the “Share” button at the bottom to share through text, messenger and/or email.

You can also save the directions for later, by hitting the “Save” button at the bottom of the screen.
