

Dr. Rishana S. Cohen is an Assistant Professor of Emergency Medicine at SUNY Upstate Medical University and has served in this role since 2018. Originally from Valley Stream, NY, she obtained her B.A. from Oberlin College in 2007 with majors in Chemistry & Biochemistry. She then attended medical school at the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, graduating with an M.D. in 2015.

She completed her residency in Emergency Medicine in 2018 from SUNY Upstate and has practiced Emergency Medicine there since. In 2023 she obtained her Master of Public Health (MPH) degree in from SUNY Upstate. She is board certified in both Emergency Medicine (2019, ABEM) and Addiction Medicine (2024, ABPM).

She works in the Upstate Downtown Emergency Department, Pediatric Emergency Department, and Community Campus Emergency Departments in Syracuse, NY. She also works at the Upstate Opioid Bridge Clinic treating patients with a variety of substance use disorders. In addition to clinical work, she is active in medical education, teaching medical students and residents about a variety of topics including public health, women's health, disaster medicine, addiction medicine, medical ethics, and the medical student Emergency Medicine clerkship.